Seminar Concept Note:

Professor Benoy Kumar Sarkar was born in comparatively backward district of Bengal, Malda on 26 December, 1887 and completed his schooling from Malda's leading school 'Malda Zilla School' with distinction. His incomparable intelligence came into notice when he left for Calcutta for his higher study and established a record by standing first in that young age of just thirteen in 1901 at Entrance Examination of Calcutta University. His brilliant performance continued during his entire college life and always stood first. Unfortunate partition of Bengal 1905 shocked young Benoy Kumar, so he vehemently rejected India Government's state scholarship as well as the most covetable offer of the day of Deputy Magistrate. He actively participated in Swadeshi Movement and country's freedom-political, economic, cultural-was the élan vital of him. He actively participated in the National Education Movement, established a number of schools at various places in the country and wrote more than twenty books in this period for learners. He toured all over the world, lectured at most of the universities and colleges of US, UK, France, Germany, Austria, Japan, and Spain etc. His excellent command on French, Spanish, German, Italian along with Bengal, English and other Indian languages assisted him to communicate with whole world in their languages and distinguished him among his counterparts. He was one of the rarest people who communicated with the world easily and grasped their inventions, cultures from their original texts. He advocated Indian culture, glorious past at the world stages and stood against the concept of inferiority of Indian culture and history. He was the first person to call for East-West Equality. He was the source of communication between culture of India and the world. He was one of the greatest patriots, nationalists, freedom fighters India ever got. He was an ambassador of unity, integrity of the nation and world culture as well. He wrote more than hundred books on various topics. He was a great academician, professor, writer, journalist, freedom fighter, economist, philosopher, sociologist, political scientist and many more. This multi-dimensional fascinating personality died on 24 November, 1949 in USA while he was on an academic tour, leaving behind a great legacy.

Few works were done on various aspects of his personality but more required to give him his actual due he didn't get. So One Day National Seminar is going to jointly organized by Malda College, SURSRISHTI (A Cultural & Educational Trust) and Malda College Alumni Association to remember Malda's the son of soil on the occasion of his 130th birth anniversary to highlight his contributions to the world in general and the nation in particular.
